The tollowing report of the President was then submitted to the Society:

GENTLEMEN-Again we have pleasure of greeting you in this our Twenty-sixth annual meeting, which calls us together to consult upon the the material prosperity and usefulness of our society. The past year, like several of its predecessors, has been one of continued business depression through all branches of manufacture, shipping and trade, and the Home has not been exempt from its depressing effects. We have not had the financial prosperity we looked for. Our buildings have not rented for as good rates as we had hoped, and we have not been able to meet fore than our current expenses, and have paid nothing on the bonded debt. Our main building is still uncompleted. and we would especially call your ating some plan whereby we can put it in rather a better condition for the comfort of the inmates. During the past year we have succeeded in procuring the sick seamen from the government, to accomplish which we have made repeated efforts for several years past, and during the past summer they were turned over under contract to our Mr. Gilbert, the keeper of the Home. In compliance with the resolution at last meeting, we have made application to the parent society of New York city for a special donation of one hundred dollars, to assist us in finishing the third floor of the building to make it comfortable for sleeping apartments, which donation we confidently expect to be granted. And, upon such improvements being completed, we can reasonably expect a better revenue next year. We gratefully acknowledge the generosity of the parent society in New York, whose grant of four hundred dollars during the past year enabled us to pay the salary of our Chaplain, a report of whose Christian labors we may expect at this meeting. For a detailed statement of our financial condition you are referred to the report of our Treasurer. Captain Gilbert, keeper of the Home,

Respectfully submitted, GEORGE R. FRENCH, Sr., President S. F. Society. Wilmington, N. C., February 4, 1879.

This is reduced to the consistency of ordinary whitewash, and at the time of application half an ounce of carbolic acid added to each gallon of liquid. Mr. Saunders says: "I generally applied it in the spring, before the leaves make their appearance, but I am convinced that it would be more effective if applied later. An Ultra Democratic View of Them.

[East Florida Banner (Dem.)]

Dr. R. H. McI vaine, editor of the Cedar Keys Journa!, expresses our views in the matter of Governor Hull's indictment for complicity in procuring a fraudulent return of the vote of Brevard county. There is a chain of evidence which connects him directly with that fraud. Acting upon the suggestion contained in his letter to Mr. Poyntz, the fraud was perpetrated. Three men occupying humbler positions than Mr. Hull, were induced to commit this crime. They have since been convicted and sentenced to serve a term of years in the Albany Penitentiary at hard labor. In this matter Governor Hull acted outside of his party. It was his individual act, and the party of which he is a member cannot be held responsible therefor. As regards frauds, the policy of the Democratic party is clearly pronounced. One of the clearly expressed tenets of that party now is not only to unearth and punish fraud, but to condemn the condonation of fraud; and upon this principle the Democrrtic party must be kept pure. If individual members of that party, acting upon their own suggestions, shall commit frauds upon the ballot, or alter the returns after they have been deposited in the custody of the proper officials, they must suffer the consequences of their crime. Mr. Hull has gotten himself into an ugly mess, and he must extricate himself as best he can. If he wrote to Mr. Poyntz with the intent to suggest the perpetration of a fraud, he ought not to go to Congress, and if he had no better sense nor discretion than to write such a letter without intending to convey such a suggestion, he is not fitted to be a representative in Congress; and now that it is clearly established that Mr. Bisbee received a majority of the votes, and was legally elected, we think that Mr. Hull should gracefully yield him the certificate of election and retire from politics-a business for which he seems entirely unsuited. He owes this much to the people of this district and the party of which he is a member, and this the party ought to demand. As Dr. Mc-Ilvaine says it is "best to have the proud consciousness of having done right than to attempt to attain a temporary advantage by sacrifice of principle." The following is the Doctor's remarks on the subject in full: You will see by the dispatches that Lieutenant Governor Hull has been indicted in the United States Court in Jacksonville for conspiracy to secure a fraudulent return of the election in Brevard County. This action is based upon a letter written by Hull to one Nat Poyntz three days after the election, saying that, according to the lateest returns, in (which did not include Brevard and Dade counties), he lacked 202 votes of an election, and for Poyntz to proceed to Brevard, regardless of expense, and see what could be done. If there had been no false return from Brevard county this letter would have been comparatively harmless; but coupled as it is with such admitted fraud, it has an exceedingly ugly look, and will probably lead to very serious consequences.

My own opinion that it will cost Mr. Hull his seat in the forty-sixth Congress and that justly. The grand old Democratic party cannot afford to countenance or uphold fraud in elections or sustain the claims of any maa who attempts to retain office by a resort to fraudulent returns; better let Mr. Hull go by the board, and seat his opponent, if elected, and have the proud consciousness of having done right, than to attempt to attain a temporary advantage by sacrifice of prin-

REPUBLICANS IN THE LEGISLA-

The Republican party is well represented in the General Assembly-as well if not better than it has been for many years past. The colored mem. bers are very excellent representatives, above the average in point of ability and character that has been elected to the legislature since the adoption of the Constitution of 1868. On the vote on the Raleigh and Augusta Air Line Railroad they stood manfully by their state and their people's interest and only two colored members and six white Republicans voted against the amendment offered by Mr. Foard.

THE RALEIGH AND AUGUSTA AIR LINE.

The friends of North Carolina succeeded on Thursday last in getting the above charter so amended that the said Road cannot discriminate against any city or town in North Carolina; which is really a very great triumph over the Virginians. The bill chartering the above Road from Sanford to Charlotte was offered by Mr. Brown of Charlotte. Mr. Foard of Surry, a gallant North Carolinaian and a very able lawyer offered the following eral or other railway branch, branches

Messrs. Foard of Surry, Cobb of Lincolnton, Covington of Moore, Colwell of Duplin, Lockhart of Anson Clark of Crayen and Carter of Buns combe, made able speeches in behalf of the amendment, appealing to the House to protect North Carolina's interest and North Carolina cities and towns from the discrimination of fors eign Railroad Companies. The people of the whole state are under obligations to these gallant and able gentlemen for their manly fight in behalf of the interest of the Old North State.

We publish the official vote below to show the vote on the amendment offered by Mr. Foard and published

We give this much of the bill because it embodies its chief features, and is a matter of the first consequence to our people. What progress it has made in the General Assembly we do not know

The recent passage at arms between Congressman Bragg, of Wisconsin, and Messrs. Singleton and Chalmers, of Mississippi, shows that the tail is to no longer wag the Democratic dog. This is perfectly natural. The brains, and we believe patriotism, as well as the numerical strength of the Democratic party, has always been in the South. But, since the war, the Southern Democrats have done the voting, while the Northern Democrats have carried off the honors. After the next Presidential election, Democrats of the North may expect to take a back seat, and the party machine will be run by Southern men. They will not dare to run a Southern man for President in 1880. but the South will have a man pledged to do their bidding, should he be elected. Such men as Mr. Bragg may as well be getting ready to accept the situation. They can not withstand the party lash which will be applied with vigorous hands, and they must either succumb to the inevitable, or be read out. The dog will not consent to be longer wagged by the tail.—Kno.vville Whig and Chronicle.

THE DEMOCRACY AND THE

BPOILS. The patriotism and energies of the Democratic party are never so actively aroused as when pastures green that unfold the tempting hope of spoils are spread out before its members. There is great vitalizing power in the prospeet of an office to an average Democrat. He at once becomes a patriot, and is alive to the importance of serving his country. There is a remarkable instance of this kind now at the National Capital. Soon the United States Senate is to hold within itself a Democratic majority-a circumstance struction of a railway from the city of unknown to history for some twenty years. The Senate has patronage to dispense, a fact which has been snuffed afar off and has brought a host of Virginia, or either or both of them: afar off and has brought a host of Provided, That should this corporation hungry and ardent expectants to the purchase the Western North Carolina front to wrangle over the few loaves Railroad or in any way obtain control and fishes that are to be distributed. The cry is, "still they come," and hotels and lodging and boarding-houses SEC. 3. That so soon as the sum of are being crowded with palpitating hearts and hungry contestants for the tempting prizes. Tennessee has its Burch, Pennsylvania its Stenger, act, or a majority of them, to appoint a North Carolina its Waddell, West Virginia its McMahon.. Marvland its Dennis, with a legion of lesser fry. who seem to suffer aggravated hunger as they discover little chance of its gratification. There are a multitude of Democratic minnows playing around the hook, trying to get a nibble at the bait, each differing with the rest of mankind when they think that they should be selected for the possession of some of this meat which hangs dangling upon the Democratic hook.

The scramble is vigorous, and the contest is increasing in bitterness, and we will glance at the battle-field of New Hanover county, in the action these Democratic gladiators. The first now pending in said court, wherein in order to be inspected is Senator these Democratic gladiators. The first Dennis, of Maryland, whose Senatorial term expires on the 4th of next March, and who will ask the Senate to return him to a subordinate position in the body of which he is now an honorable peer. We have great respect for Sens ator Dennis in his present positioni. e., we have as much respect for him as we can have for a gentleman who has made the mistake of taking up his ties, and all the estate and property of bed and board with the Democratic party-but when we consider him as a candidate for the Secretaryship of the Senate, in which he now holds an honored seat, which, if sccessful, will enable him to lay aside his Senatorial toga and step down at once to a subordinate position in the same body, tion shall purchase the property of the our respect for him dwarfs, and we turn aside from the consideration of such an event with unpleasant emotions.

> Then comes Mr. Burch, of Tennessee, who, for aught that we know, stands well, personally, but he is making his canvass chieffly on his war record in the Confederate army during the rebellion. With the Senate, as it will then be constituted in its majority, this may be regarded as a strong, and it may prove a winning card; while to the average loyal citizen that would not be regarded as the highest grade of claim to distinctive position in the reorganization of the Senate. The Democrats, however, have become a law unto themselves so far as loyalty to the Government is concerned, and exercise a generous indulgence toward those who have attempted to take the nation.

> Professor McMahon, of West Virgins ia, is a formidable candidate for the position of Secretary of the Senate, but we opine that he is too much of an educated, fair-minded, well-qualified, and respectable gentleman to be preferred by the Democratic party. Our only wonder is that a gentleman of his innate instincts of manhood, scholarly acquirements, and liberal views, should have found his political home with that party. We have no idea that such abilities and attainments are to be recognized and appreciated by the > Democrats. Mr. Waddell has been an average Democratic member of Congress from what is known as the "tar-neel" State, and that seems to be the highest claim filed in his behalf. If the Secreary. ship was a position of ease and luxury, where the incumbent had no more to do than the figure that shows the wares of a clothing store, then no doubt Mr. Waddell would be adequate to the situation, but the duties require industry, talent, patience, and executive ability to aid their proper performance. In this case, unless our judgment is at fault, these desired qualities will be found missing if ever called for in that > Mr. Stenger, of Pennsylvania, bases his claim for the place upon the fact that he has been a member of Congress and has been repudiated by his constituency. Perhaps that is a good Democratic claim, but with the rest of mankind it would not go far in securing success so long as the applicant is scarcely up to mediocrity as a member. and yet he may be the very kind of stuff that the Democrats will foist into a responsible position heretofore filled by gentlemen of respectability and Tilden the Innocent.

The world has been led to believe that Samuel J. Tilden is a man of remarkable parts. Wise above what is written-shrewd as cunning could render him-acute in his observation -searching in his purposes-wide awake to all that is going on around him-brave to the point of distinguished heroism-rich in enterprise and in wealth-sharp as they make-indeed, so keen that he was an overmatch for Tammany and the "Tweed Ring," and brought the latter into a most uncomely and repulsive ruin by his keensighted intelligence, his keen scent for rascality, and his relentless reform. He has been credited with all these attributes and honored as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency on their account. During that eventful canvass, in which Hayes had 185 votes. and was elected, money flowed like water from the barrels of this modern CRESUS. New York was flooded with his ducats. Indiana shared largely of his munificence. New Jersey and Connecticut became the objects of his special care, and both saw the color and denomination of his money. Ohio was not forgotten, while Pennsylvania was squinted at from his off eye. The South was cared for, and rifle clubs flourished under the fostering influence of his wonderful reforming political agencies. The canvass was made lively by the wide-awake characteristics of Samuel J. Tilden as the Democratic reform candidtae for the Presi-

The campaign was pushed through by all the modern agencies of an unscrupulous and reckless use of money outlawry and outrage, when it was discovered that Tilden was not quite elected by all these questionable appliances that had been brought to bear upon the canvass-Hayes having 185 electoral votes, and being elected. Then the south was invaded by visiting tatesmen to see that a fair count of the votes should be secured, and among them the emissaries of Tilden, who were among the most active and vigilant. Cipher telegrams were invented and aimed at Gramercy park without stint. Moneys were subscribed in large sums, and the purchase of states were as cooley considered as the purchase and sale of railroad stocks by "the railroad wrecker" South Carolina was in the market at $60,000, Louisiana could be purchased for a larger sum. Marble, Weed and Coyle were as lively as a hive of bees on a sunny day in summer. Cipher telegrams which concealed the terrible secrets of a conspiracy to corrupt the elective franchise and subvert the popular voice by absolute purchase of states rained in upon Gramercy park like a plentious shower. This scheme failed, and Hayes was declared elected. The cipher dis- party. patches were discovered, and the plot was revealed by their translation, The parties who sent and received them own up to their substantially correct translation; but, most fortunately for them, they have lost or destroyed their keys, and hence cannot tell if they are literally rendered by the Tribune. None, however, presume to impeach the translations given, and these dispatches stand as a monument of Demos cratic dishonesty and dishonor. The investigation has done its work of revelation and substantiation. Tilden begs the privilege of coming before the committee that he may wash himself in innocency before his country-men. He has been engaged on that service for two days, and Le has made his ablution as faithful as a Hindoo in in the Ganges, He denies any knowledge of the wicked conspiracies and intentions of his coparceners and agents. All was done without his knowledge and consent. He knew nothing of the wickedness then, and he knows nothing of it now. His eyes were closed and his ears were shut, and he washes himself in the pool of ignorance and innocence, and would rather be an angel than President through such agencies os his friends and instruments brought to bear upon the contest. The naughty men in his employ were the rogues, while he is clad in saintly robes. What a masquerade!

The Republicans have nothing to fear in the most earnest and searching inquiry into the Florida affair. As that inquiry now stands it appears that Tilden, who has added to his income-tax thefts, his railroad wrecking, and his stock jobbing the most public and revolting crimes of perjury and blasphemy, has declared that the res turning board was bought. Manton Marble confirms (?) this day by the assertion that the board was for sale. Mr. Dyke's infamous and unwarranted offer to buy the board or sell it to . the Tildenitea is all the foundation Marble has or had for his statement. This cumulation of falsehood serves to aid the Tildenites in the erection of their claims. It all rests upon Dyke's unsupported expression. Call Mr. Dyke and see if he will now swear to that expression or give any valid reason for is belief. Dyke's offer being established as the unwarranted effort of a common plunderer, the structure of perjury and vile slander will fall to the

That Made Before the Potter Committee by Manton Marbie Yester-

[Special Telegram to The Inter Ocean.] WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 -- Manton Marble's appearance on the witness stand to-day was a remarkable exhibition of tolid wickedness and high-toned Pecksniffian morality. It was the general opinion that the two self-confessed scamps, Weed and Pelton, did not make half so bad an appearance as this highbred Joseph Sulkey, who resented all the charges of immorality, and yet disclosed every moment his utter lack of principle. The Tribune, in its editorial review, says: "Marble also bears witness to the essential accuracy of the Tribune's translations. Ho admits that he did transmit in cipher dispatches addressed to Colonel W. T. Pelton, 15 Gramercy Park, two, probably three, nfamous propositions. One for the ourchase of the decision of the board and the certificate of the Governor for $200,000; another for the purchase of one member of the board for $50,000. The figure of the third, he thinks, $250,-000. All Marble's microscopic critici-m of words and dates may pass for the present unnoticed, for it only serves to render more emphatic and decisive his recognition and acknowledgement his recognition and acknowledgement of the essential truth of the main charges. He says that he never remonstrated with Pelton for his acts of infamy; that he did not even say a word to the members of the Democratic committee about the conduct of the man trusted by them, nor to Tilden about the behavior of his nephew and Secretary; that he suffered the committee, and Tilden, and all the world, to remain ignorant of the facts, though daily association with Colonel Pelton only increased every day the weight of evidence which has now accumulated against Tuden himself. All these things Mr. Marble asserts under oath. How many persons does he expect to have believe him?"

Pelton's Confession.

Mr. Pelton has spoken. The nephew and confidential secretary of Mr. Tilden, and the Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, confesses that an attempt was made to buy the electoral vote of Louisiana, South Carolina, and Florida; acknowledges that the cipher telegrams, as published, are substantially correct, admits that he is the author of the dispatches agreeing to pay $50,000 for the electoral vote of a State, and declares that Manton Marble, Smith M. Weed, Woolley, and A other Democrats were his confederates or agents in negotiating the purchase. This is, in effect, a plea of guilty on the part of the leaders of the Democratic

When the charge that the Democrats had attempted to buy the electoral votes of two or three States was first made, it was met by an unqualified denial. The people were informed that no such proposition had ever been made or entertained for a moment. When the cipher telegrams were published the correctness of the translation was at first denied. Then explanations were offered to show that all references to money related to campaign expenses, or to expenditures on the part of the committees. Now, after hundreds of letters have been written, and scores of witnesses have testified to explain away all the complications of the Democratic case, here comes a witness from head quarters who admits all that was ever charged, and involves the gentlemen, who have been so prolific in explanation, in new complications.

Mr. Pelton is important in this matter only as he plays an important part. Driven from every position that they have taken, falling back from the aggressive to the detensive, and then taking up the line of retreat, the Dem. ocratic leaders find themselves in a corner. In this last extremity, when denial no longer answered, and when explanations were only laughed at, it was no longer a question of further resistance, but one of escape. It was no longer a question as to who could make the stoutest denial, but as to what one could best afford to make open confession. Pelton was chosen, and, like the "immortal J. N.," he assumes the pressure. He takes the sins of the whole Democratic management on his shoulders, and staggers off. It is an amusing and interesting spectacle, but it does not clear the skirts of the Democratic party. There was an effort made to buy the electoral vote of three States, and Pelton's confession simply points out the guilty parties. Democratic veterans who smell the battle of 1880 are beginning to boast of their robust health. Thurman "pever felt better." Hendricks is running over with youthful enthusiasm. Tilden toward spring will light on his horse for his morning ride without touching his foot in the stirrup. These facts are encouraging. We need healthy candidates This is especially true of the Democracy, who will find a realizing truth of the old song of "Jordan is a hard road to travei."

SUNDAY MORNING, FEB. 16, 1879.

How the Alps were Formed Mr. J. W. Judd, F. R. S., professor of geology at the royal school of mines, recently delivered a lecture in London, taking for his subject the formation of the Swiss Alps. The results of geologi. eat observations are, as the lecturer pointed out, that four stages can be recognized in the history of these Also: First, the existence of a line of walkness in the earth's crust mearly comident with the line of the present moun-- tains. This is evidenced by the sa that along this line of weakness there were velcanic outbursts, the result which can still be traced. Seconds, there followed along this Bue of wester nefs a depression and in this home "trough" of miles in extent these were can weer no clothes whatever, "trough" of miles in extent these were return to the mouth of the tunnel return to the mouth of the tunnel clays by various forms of water agencies, and by animals living in the waters. Thirdly, there followed the consolidation of those soft and loose matererials. There is evidence that the accumulation was of from six to seven miles in thickness, and the mere weight of the supersincumbent material on the lower strata would have a share in effecting consolidation. But this was not all. Under this vast covering heat had led to crystallization from fusion. There was, too, the crushing in from the sides of the trough. This was illustrated by a model of the late Sir H. de la Beche, where lateral pressure was employed on layers of different colored cloth, showing how crumpling resulted, with uplifting the parts of the accumulated mass. Fourthly, there had been the sculpturing of all this into its present form, which was the work of rains and frosts. Some of the existing peaks, even 3,000 feet high, were composed entirely of the disintegrating material resulting from the action of water, either as ice in glaciers or as rain and streams. The amount of material removed in this way was so stupendous it was almost staggering to try to grasp the facts. The sculpturing of the con-

A queer legal question-can a man marry himself?-has come up recently in the Irish courts, and has attracted much attention from its novelty. The facts that gave rise to the matter are these: Some years ago Rev. Samuel Beamish, of Cork, being then in charge of a congregation; went to the house of a milliner in that city, and under its roof, and in a private apartment, sought a sentimental interview with a young and comely apprentice, Isabella Frazer, and then and there performed the marriage ceremony between her and him self. No one was present except the couple in question, and it was thought that nobody had witnessed the peculiar wedding; but it was shown that a servant, Catharine Coffey, had seen what had occurred through a window from an adjoining back yard, hadag been drawn thither by sheer curtosity. Oatharme had not heard the words or observed the forms used on the occasion the ceremony was the one prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer-but she had carefully watched as a woman would be likely to watch such a proceeding—all that was going on. Isabella Frazer, some time after, gave birth to a son, and three years later the clergyman died intestate. He left considerable property, and his brother contended that, as the marriage had been illegal, the child was illegitimate, and could not inherit from his father. It would seem that Beamish had not intended to make Isabella his wife, but case occupied the courts for three years; but it has finally been decided that the marriage was valid, at least in Ireland. Under the circumstances, this would certainly seem to be a righteons de-

The Expansive Power of Water. It is well known, says the World of that if the tip of an exceedingly small etc., etc. tube be dipped into water, the water will rise spontaneously in the tube throughout its whole length. This may be shown in a variety of ways: for instance, when a piece of sponge, or suwater, these substances being all comup the water, and the whole of the piece becomes wet. It is said to suck up or ground. This strange action is called "capillary," from the resemblance the minute tubes bear to a hair, the Latin of which is apillas. It is, moreover, singular that the absorption of the water takes place with great force. If a dry sponge be enclosed tightly in a vessel it will expand, when wetted, with sufficient torce to burst it, unless very strong. Wood which is a more unyielding material acts with tremendous force when wetted, and advantage has been taken of this faot in splitting olocks of granite. This process is largely adopted in Dartmoor. After a mass of granite has been rent from the mountain by blasting, it is measured in every direction to see how best to divide it into smaller blocks. These are traced out by straight lines on the surface, and a series of holes are drilled at short intervals along this line. Wedges of dry wood are then tightly driven into the holes and wetted, and the combined action of the swelling wood splits the ock in the direction required, and thousany destructive violence. The process is then carried out upon er faces, and the roughly shapen finished with the hammer and

The Tobacco Tax.

That where the carcass is there the ruitures will congregate, is undoubtedly true. So we find a horde of to bacco manufacturers round the corridors of Congress asking the reduction of the tobacco tax. The present tax on tobacco and cigars brings the Government from $35,000,000, to $40,000,000 each year. The manufacturers now ask that this tax be reduced to such an extent that, should their demands he complied with, the Government income on tobaceo will fall off in the next twelve months at least $12,000, 000. They come before Congress and argue that this reduction will benefit both the producers and consumers of tobacco. This is not so. It will inure solely to the benefit of the manufacstage was of quite recent date, speaking turers. The producer will receive no geologically; but the whole history involved a lapse of time which, at the more for his raw material, and the cousumer will not buy his tobacco or beginning of the century, philosophers cigars a penny in the pound less. The vultures have suggeded in get reduction equal to one half of the amount asked for, and now they propose to make a fight on the floor of the Secate for the full amount. This is all wrong. The tax on tobacco should remain as it is, even if the horse-racing "Lorillards," who are making thou sands of dollars out of governmen contracts, do insist upon the reduction

The Mexican Mustang Liniment is a matchiess eme dy for all external ailments of man and beast. To stock owners and farmers it is invaluable. A single bottle often saves a human life or re stores the usefulness of an excellent horse, ox ow, or sheep. It cures foot-rot, hoof-all, hollow horn, grub, crew-worm, shoulder-rot, mange, the bites and stings of poisonous reptiles and insects, and every meh drawback to stock breeding and bush life. It cures every external trouble of horses, such s lameness, scratches, swinny, sprains, founder, wind-gall, ring-bone, etc., etc. The Mexican Mustang Liniment is cure in the world for accidents occurring in the family, in the absence of a physician, such as burns, scalds, sprains, cuts, etc., and for rheumatism, and stiffness engendered by exposure. Particularly valuable to Miners. It is the cheapest remedy in the world, for it penetrates the muscle to the bone, and a single pplication is generally sufficient to cure. Mexican Mustang Liniment is put up in three sizes of bottles, the larger ones being proportionately much the cheapest. Sold everywhere. february 1 ly R

No greater evil has com .e out of chaos of Protestantism the ... n the disregard of the marriage " ue, which is making our , a by-word of reproach among me nations. Having weakened respect for the marriage bond, the devil need do no more. He can rest satisfied. The swine rush into the sea of their own accord. Passing from the lightness and levity with which many Protestants and Indifferents regard this holy state, let us consider the evils with which contract with a society indifferent or antagonistic to the Church-for those who are not with her are against her-have worked among ourselves. Marriage will always result in happiness if contracted with the proper disposition. Is there anything more holy on earth, except the consecration of a soul entirely to God in the religious state, than the spectacle of two persons, loving and respecting each other, firm in their Faith, bathed in the light of hope, and filled with the grace of God, starting out together in the pathway of life? The Church, in her wisdom, advises young people to marry, if they have no vocation for the religious life. But she does not advise them to follow the dictates of blind passion or sentimental caprice, in their choice of a partner. She doos not advise them to rush into matrimony with no thought of God; she bids them remember that they are followers of Christ, not of Cupid or Priapus— Christians, not Pagans. And yet numbers of our young men contract marriage rather as Pagans than as Christians. They do not pray to God for direction, they do not ask His blessing: consequently they do not receive it. Prettiness of face, grace of form, a certain attraction which the novels call "love," but which is so far from being worthy of the name as truth is from falsehood, decide them; and when they have decided, they swear that heaven and earth cannot move them. The responsibilities of the future are nothing to the gratification of the present. The rosy dreams of courtship enervate the mind, and if they ever think of the future of their married life, it is only to regard it as a kind of Mahammed's paradise-at best, as a place where the stern realities, sorrows and hardships of the world can never enter. Passion pushes God aside, passion casts roses over the sharp rocks, passion accompanies them, and leads them for a few careless months; and then suddenly the unhappy couple find themselves facing the misery of a life which is worse than death. Disgust, contempt, sometimes takes the place of the spurious love, and this is the end of the day that dawned so rosily.

If a young man's present position is secure, if he sees a fair prospect of employment in the future, if he knows a girl whom, in his coolest moments, who seems will make him a good wife, it is well for him to marry. He who marries a wife whom he must plunge into poverty, is devoid of common prudence. It is not necessary for him have a paying occupation-no matter how small the pay, if he and his wife can live on Some of the happiest marriages we have known were made between persons who are compelled to practice the strictest economy from the beginning; and their happiest memories are of the time when the wherewithal for their daily expenses have cause for pleasant converse and innumerable consultations upon ways and means. A little adversity in the beginning is no bad thing, and if bravely foced, with firm trust in God, does not last long. Marriage is a very solemn thing-to be weighed carefully, to be made the subject of earnest prayer and profound consideration. It is as holy as it is sol emn. It blesses those who worthily recieve it; and if it prove a curse it is because the participants were unworthy of the graces it confers. Mr. Barry, in his work, "Russia in 1870," tells the following story of the time when slavery was an institution in that country: A certain ironmaster caused a man who had offended him to be locked up in an iron cage, and kept him confined in it for a length of time. At last, while he was absent on a jourcame to the knowledge of the Governor excitement and dissipation soon gained of the province. The Governor caused the man, cage and all, to be brought to the Government town, and invited the tyrannical ironmaster to dinner. After the dinne: was over the Governor sent for a quail in a wooden cage, and offered to sell it to his guest for 10,000 roubles. The offer being treated as a joke, the Governor said he had a more valuable bird to sell, and told his servant to bring it in. Folding doors flew open, and the iron cage with its miserable captive was set down before the astonished guest. "Now," said the Govern or, "What do you think of that for a quail? But this is a very expensive bird; I want 2,000 roubles for him." "All right," said the alarmed proprietor. "I will buy this one; send him down to my works without the cage, and your messenger shall bring the amount." The matter was thus pleasantly settled, and the company adjourned in undisturbed harmony to

How a Man Feels With His Head Off.

It is considered on all sides that the Marriage is a subject which, at some | body does not feel one instant after detime or other, engages the attention of capitation-for the brain being the every man. Whether he gives it his seat of seasation to the whole fram; serious attention or not, depends upon through the mediam of the spinal par the common sense he possesses. It is row, every pact of the body beneath the most serious step a man can take, the point at which the latter may be for on it follow future happiness or divided must be deprived of feeling. misery, often for the next world as But it by no means follows that the well as this. The Church never lose head is deprived of consation immean apportunity of showing how worthy diately after decapitation, nor that it .st retain its consciousness, and ake the head of the Irish knight who was killed by Saladin in the holy war, got up and declared that it was never cut off by so sharp a cimeter beforenor like that of the assassin Legare, swear roundly at the executioner for not keeping a keener axe; but it is quite impossible that it may be troubled irrevocability of its fate, and the awfulness of its deprivation. In support of this unpleasant theory many facts are adduced with grave vouchers for their authenticity. Among others is the unfortunate Queen of Scots, whose lips continued to move in prayer for at lesst a quarter of an hour after the executioner had performed his duties. Wilt states that having put his mouth to the ear of a decapitated criminal's head and called by name, the eyes turned to the side from whence the voice came; and the fact is attested by Fontanelle, Mogore, Guillotine, Nauche and Aldint. On the word "murder" being called in the case of a criminal executed for that crime at Coblentz, the half-closed eyes opened wide with an expression of rebroach on those who stood around.

Of the work, Nobody else can do your work. God's providence allotted it to you and fitted you to it. Don't let it be hindered by diffidence, or false modesty, or indifference. Rather should you take a workman's pride in it and be jealous lest some unskillful hand may spoil it.

Of the blame. It is little and mean to be forever hunting up somebody upon whom to charge the failure of an enterprise. Things have gone wrong. Plans seemingly well-laid have failed and there is blame somewhere. Most likely it is in yourself. Be sure it is not before you begin to find fault with

Of the responsibility. Nothing more delusive than the feeling which prompts us to "avoid responsibility." Responsibility can no more be shunned than can duty. Indeed the yery essence of duty is responsibility. Not to say what ought to be said, not to do what ought to be done, does not lessen responsibility. The question to be decided is that of one's relation to the case. This settled, we should speak and act in the fear of God and the love of

Of the reward. Not in the spirit of self-congratulation. True childlikeness of heart will take rewards from the master's hand as it takes its work with gladness and love, seeing in each completed task the end, when it shall be said: "Enter into the joys of thy Lord." - Wesleyan Advocate.

Honor Your Parents

A miserable-looking man went into a grocer's shop in York and begged for bread. The grocer thought that he knew the man, and asked him if his name was not-, who had once a good fortune of his own. Yes, it was the same man. The grocer spoke kindly to him, and inquired how he had became so poor. "Ah sir," he replied, "I am suffering for my bad conduct to my widowed mother. I used to wish her dead that I might have her property, but when I got my desire, I never prospered; the money was soon squandered and now I am reduced to want? Let all boys and girls take warning from this. God has said that he will bless those children who love and obey their parents, but his curse shall be upon the disobedient.—S. S. Visitor.

The young woman, "Blanche Frazier," who attempted suicide in St. Louis, was raised in one of the most princely homes of Clifton, a surburb of Cincinnati. Her father was one of the best known and most successful business men of that city, and from his large income he lavished every luxury that money could purchase upon his family and his home. His daughter, Emma Blanche Bennett, was educated at Mt. Auburn Female Seminary; and in her earlier years was everywhere a favorite. Unfortunately she had a mother wholly given over to fashionable life and its dissipations-a woman whose only delight was to shine in diamonds and velvets and silks, and who forgot every other duty in the whirl of fashionable life. At the age of 15, the young girl, handsome and attractive, ney, the case of his wretched prisoner was pushed out into society, and in its an appetite for wine and stronger drink. The mother smiled approval, and the father, engrossed in his business affairs, failed to extend a hand to save, even if he had the power to rescue her from the more natural protection of the mother. Ruin came. The young girl married a worthless man and moved to Chicago, only to be abused. She parted from her husband and went to St. Louis, and there has been reading a life of shame, which now is likely to end in suicide. It is well to allow each reader to draw the moral, and learn the sad lesson. It is one full of warning to mothers, even to those whose homes of splendor seem to be far removed from Virgin. such tragedies. Somebody is responsible for this child of sin. We stood at an open window Leaning far over the sill. And if something hadn't happened We might have stood there still;

But we reached for a banging shutter In a blinding northeast breeze, go our friends will have to be invited To join in the obsequies.

IF WE COULD ONLY HAVE KNOWN what a storm was brewing (in a teapot), and how far off that shutter was, we should never have ventured our head outside of that window; but it is too late for rejets now; we are nonplussed, completely squeiched, have been sat upon, and our friends and the public generally are respectfully invited to attend the obsequies on and we stake our reputation on its being the grandest funeral they ever witnessed. As he slips he slides, and every time he slides he slips up most woefully. We leave our "kind friends" to find out the meaning of the above, and while they are doing so we will ask the following questions:

Havn't we the ugitest and dirliest store,in Havn't we the poorest stock of goods in Wilmington? Havn't we made prices much highesince

Havn't we been very unaccommodating and impolite to rou?

Havn't we charged you for all the goods

Havn't we made a great many mistakes and refused to correct them when our attention was called thereto? f at $1 60 per bbl.

CRUDE TURPENTINE—The market any more. Respectfully and truly,

P. L. BRIDGERS & CO.

In glancing over last Sunday's paper we regretted to notice the tacit acknowledgment from some of our brother grocers that we had taken away part of their trade, and making an appeal to the others not to leave them. We regret this exceedingly, especially as they were so kind and considerate about our coming to grief, but suppose, as we have determined to do the

We have been over and smoked that "Cigar of Pesce." (a fine Havans it was), but still think it would be bad policy to stop furnishing the papers with our fine literary productions, as they have the tendency to keep prices very low, which we, of course, with all other good grocers. desire; only want enough left to pay for clerk's hire, store rent and taxes.

NOT PURITANICAL.

Although opposed to the drinking of Liquors, P. L. BRIDGERS & CO., are not puritanical enough to refuse to sell them, as they think no FIRST CLASS GROCERY STORE can afford to be without; but they promise the ladies that they would never find out there was any on the premises, as it must be taken elsewhere to be grunk.
